A military tribunal on Friday convicted former FDA Commissioner Stephen Hahn on charges of treason and accessory to murder after he admitted that he and other members of Trump's Coronavirus Task Force had deceived their president into believing untested Covid-19 vaccines were safe and effective, pushing Trump to launch Operation Warp Speed.

Hahn's confession came as a surprise, for he had until that time professed his innocence. Immediately after his arrest on 29 December, Hahn told JAG investigators he had served President Trump with faith, honor, and loyalty, insisting he was being set up for crimes of which he had no knowledge. He denied being on Moderna and Pfizer's payroll. He denied allegations that he had data proving inoculations had killed or gravely sickened Covid-19 trial participants. Any incriminating evidence, Hahn had said, had been manufactured or falsified to inculpate him for someone else's crimes. Moreover, he said to investigators that he could not have betrayed President Trump because betrayal wasn't "in his character."

He clung to claims of innocence throughout two weeks of grueling interviews, even when offered potential leniency in exchange for a written confession detailing his role in the Plandemic. But Hahn didn't budge. In his final interview Thursday, he scolded investigators for "violating his civil rights" and demanded an audience with President Trump. "When Donald finds out what you've done to me, there'll be hell to pay," Hahn reportedly said, to which investigators replied, "You don't think he knows where you are? We have his blessing."

On Friday morning he swaggered into GITMO's south courtroom filled with confidence, shoulders back, chest out, boasting to Vice Adm. Darse E. Crandall that no court could find him guilty. Once seated at the defense table, he raised his cuffed hands and said, "You can bind my hands, but you can't bind the soul of an innocent man. I will be exonerated."

Vice Adm. Crandall placed on the table graphic pictures of Doctors Fauci and Collins swinging from a rope.

Hahn's chest deflated, and his face went pale. What bravado he had mustered fled his now trembling body like steam from an uncapped pot of boiling water.

"How…how could you do this?" he asked meekly.

"They did it to themselves," the admiral replied. "They shared your defiant attitude. If you think the evidence we have on you is weaker than what we had on them, you're wrong."

“If I plead guilty, will you let me live? I can’t go like that. I just can’t,” Hahn begged.

“I make the sentencing recommendation, but they decide,” Vice Admiral said as he gestured at the three officers tasked with weighing the merits of JAG’s case.

“I’m guilty,” Hahn said, nodding his head vigorously. “But they made me do it.”

“Do what?” Vice Adm. Crandall asked.

Hahn recounted how Collins and Fauci had devised a scheme to mass-vaccinate Americans under the pretense of a national health crisis. They approached him in April 2020 with a proposition: help convince Trump to expedite the delivery of vaccines into the arms of every breathing American citizen as quickly as possible to combat an evolving virus that threatened to eradicate humanity. “We all knew SARS-Cov2 was no more dangerous than seasonal influenza, that, yes, it could get the elderly and immunocompromised sick, but the vaccines were never meant to mitigate spread, they were for money and control. Trump’s smart—he suspected trying to vaccinate the population against a mild coronavirus was futile, and dangerous. He was on point with ivermectin and hydroxychloroquine therapies, but there’s no money in those products. Fauci said only a collective effort across the medical community would get Trump to support vaccines. They needed me—I was the only person who could give pharma emergency-use authorization. And they needed Trump on board since only he had the power to invoke the Emergency Health Powers Act to get Warp Speed rolling. It was collaborative deceit, thousands and thousands of health professionals out there lying about the need for vaccines. We sold a lie.”

“And you had proof early trial participants died as a result of taking the vaccines?”

“Absolutely, but I got it by accident. Moderna mistakenly sent me their real trial results, not the doctored report, which I saw later. I told Fauci, but he told me to destroy the real results and go with the fraudulent data. And I used that to help get Trump to make Warp Speed work,” Hahn said.

“And you were paid? Millions?”

“Several million,” Hahn conceded.

“Do you expect this tribunal to believe that old man Fauci and old man Collins orchestrated everything?”

“If it goes higher than them, I don’t know who’s pulling the strings,” Hahn said.

“This tribunal appreciates your belated candor, but owing to your statement of guilt, I have no choice but to recommend you be hanged by the neck until dead,” Vice Adm. Crandall said.

Hahn protested. “Wait. You said you’d let me live.”

“I said I’d make a recommendation,” the admiral corrected him, “but I didn’t specify what it would be.”

The panel agreed—Hahn’s crimes deserved no leniency.

He was frantically yelling “you tricked me” as guards escorted him to his cell.

Vice Adm. Crandall set a date of execution for Monday, January16

This story proves the power and importance of showing and proving to the public that justice and punishment for crime is taking place.

This can quickly change a person’s mind, such as other criminals facing justice, and instill a fear of man’s justice, if not also a fear of the Lord, which is the beginning of wisdom.

But more importantly, public executions witnessed by families including children have always been a powerful teaching lesson and deterrent for crime into the next generation.

Better to prevent crime early, than tolerate it to fester and grow. The best time to cut off evil is to nip it in the bud.

Families that delay “laying down the law” risk seeing their children grow up as criminals. “Spare the rod, spoil the child.”

The delay of the so-called “white hats” to reveal things to the public has now at this time become too high a price, as more and more patriots are calling them “gray hats”. Their excuse that they want more people on board, has become the time and opportunity for evil people to persuade and / or pay more people to do evil, thinking that evil pays, that there are no consequences like has been going on for decades, and that more people are doing evil than actually are.

Their excuse to avoid civil war is also unfounded. When God's justice and intervention is quickly seen, evil and corruption will quickly flee.

Even if there is civil war, the light will quickly overcome the darkness. The darkness never overcomes the light – the light that should be in us, which is God in us by His grace. Just make sure we really are ON His side and IN His grace.

And instead of waiting for more people to experience the results of wicked leadership, why don't we have the joy of experiencing the Fight for Freedom.

As long as justice is kept secret, you also risk being considered a "secret society".

The Lord is revealing through his prophets that everything is going to be revealed and soon, whether people co-operate with His plan or not.

As painful as it may be to hear, the time is coming where the good public will also hold the so-called "patriots" and "white hats" accountable for excesses in either direction against mercy and justice, too lenient or too strict, for giving bad advice, for tolerating and allowing evil. Look up the 9 ways to be accessory to sin – by counsel, by command, by consent, by provocation, by praise or flattery, by concealment, by partnership, by silence, by defending the evil done. And this includes a warning to our now President Trump.

For in the end, nothing escapes the knowledge and sight of God.

You leaders, patriots, "hats", social media publishers, etc – – – had better earnestly, daily, and more often, pray and get wisdom from God and IN His Holy Word.

Else you are WILL be deceived – by men or devils, you WILL learn the hard way, you may also find yourself in the same traps of others you so glibly accuse, you WILL be held accountable for every misdirection given – even every idle word! – as Jesus said (Matthew 12:36).

You must especially be careful to surround yourself with TRULY Godly people who give good advice, full of faith, and not fear of men, like David facing Goliath despite the protests of his brothers, king Saul, and others, who were losing if not already lost the faith.

King Saul became irrelevant as God anointed and raised up David, who became a man after His own Heart.

NO one can win with only the strategy of men, no matter how clever, and how many decades of preparation involved.

We need the direction of God and the coming of the Holy Spirit, who will direct us to truly godly advice and advisors – if we humbly seek it.

For example, maybe some criminals who deserve some measure of leniency would be better to be prisoners put to work to pay off their debt, have edifying chaplains and staff which they never had in their own families, and maybe have time to experience repentance and forgiveness from God as they still pay for their crimes. Saul, a murderer, became an apostle, Paul, by the truth and power of God which blinded and convicted him.

Many politicians are brats who never really knew the trials of manual labor. By learning to work by the sweat of their brow, they maybe could in some small way make restitution for the untold millions they have stolen in taxes, legislation, etc. And could help restore the economy they helped destroy.

And maybe be an example to other prisoners. to the jailers. to the world, – of God's mercy, miracles, and His system of restorative justice

The pharisees of biblical times started out as an organization to bring spiritual revival and renewal to God's people, but within a few short generations put to death Christ out of envy, didn't like his system of justice and mercy, and many of them are now burning forever in hell.

Beware of casting out and cleaning up from one devil, but if you don't put the power of God strongly into your life, your risk 7 worse devils taking up residence, and the latter state will be worse than the former. There are many pernicious doctrines of demons assailing the patriot and church communities at this time. I venture most of them do not even realize they are in darkness. That they are deceived by the false light of this world. Just as most people now in hell forever, never believed there was a hell.

An example of deceiving doctrine – Charlie Ward – you've told us your past – I can relate to it – yet you have a large, popular and worldly following, you often say what people want to hear – for example, you say there is evil that is too evil to be forgiven. You say people should listen to their inner self – really?

You are wrong. I hope your good will will lead you to greater progress in holiness, and more careful of the principles you follow and teach. But you risk yourself committing the unforgivable sin yourself, of denying the Holy Spirit working in the most sinful souls, wanting to deny them access to God by true repentance, like the thief on the cross. We should be listening to God, not our fallen human sinful natures. The one true God who sent His only Son. Who alone died and rose to satisfy God's wrath for sin, and open access to those who follow his teachings. Who taught a most unpopular doctrine of the cross, and sacrifice, and self denial, and consequences – judgment and heaven and hell.

So many people are expecting an era of peace, no sickness, med beds, everyone in agreement and peace, to rebuild a brave new world and never go back to the ancient evils. Sin is the cause of every evil, and if we don't give up sin, the evils will return, like after "the war to end all wars".

Beware the false peace and false prophets that deny taking up our daily cross, that deny the greatest work of all, the sufferings and death of Christ, and denies the power of the resurrection of Christ and his church.

Beware the counsel to "sit back and watch the show", when everyone has a lot of work, prayer and penance to work out daily their own salvation in fear and trembling, not knowing the day or hour of their death and judgment, when their eternal destiny in heaven or hell is sealed. What does it profit a man to gain the whole world, but suffer the loss of his soul? Or what can a man give in exchange for his soul?

Beware the counsel "where we go one, we go all" – straight from the pit of hell, for Jesus clearly teaches that there will be a sorting out on judgment day. And that "broad is the way that leads to destruction, and many there are that go therein." Just because everyone jumps into the lake and drowns while saying "How free – we can swim!", are you going to jump into the lake also???

Beware the counsel "nothing can stop what is coming". God can, and will if necessary, to make man realize he is powerless without His help. Or also if men render themselves unworthy of His help.

As an example, consider the Battle of the Bulge. The Germans broke out in the middle of winter, the allies weren't prepared and suffered a lot of deaths and casualties. The allies got too confident, and many of the soldiers had spent several previous weeks partying, drinking, and with French girls. War is a punishment for sin.

As painful as it may be to hear, the time is coming where the good public will also hold the so-called "patriots" and "white hats" accountable for excesses in either direction against mercy and justice, too lenient or too strict, for giving bad advice, for tolerating and allowing evil. Look up the 9 ways to be accessory to sin – by counsel, by command, by consent, by provocation, by praise or flattery, by concealment, by partnership, by silence, by defending the evil done.

And this includes a warning to our now President Trump.

For in the end, nothing escapes the knowledge and sight of God.
